In this video Sarah Erwin-Jones interviews Paul Stagg of 1 Chancery Lane, the junior counsel for the defendant. They discuss what the decision means for the principal stakeholders involved, including:

They explore what the decision means for the principal stakeholders involved. Sarah and Paul discuss:-

- What was this case about and who will be affected?
- Are there other cases waiting in the wings that may challenge this position again?
- When will the Court determine the common law duty is triggered in terms of an 'assumption of responsibility'?
- What might a 'creation of risk' case look like?
- Will we see a lot of cases pleaded for breach of Human Rights, and what guidance can be given on such claims now?
- If there were 3 key things agencies involved in child protection (SS, Police, Health, Education) should be doing differently as a result of this judgment what would they be?
