

Monthly insurance policy wording update

The Word, August 2024

29 August 2024

For our August edition of The Word we cover a range of topics of interest from across the insurance sector.

In light of recent events, we take a closer look at the CrowdStrike outage and its impact on the insurance industry. We also consider recent riots in the UK and the implications for insurers.

After a summer of sport, we examine the insurance landscape at the Olympics and what insurers need to consider when covering athletes and events...do some really insure their body parts?

Additionally, we explore how artificial intelligence is putting the 'actuarial defence' to the test and what this means for insurers. We also take a look at the Supreme Court ruling of Lipton and Another v BA Cityflyer Ltd and consider how this clarifies the scope of the extraordinary circumstances defence under EU Regulation.

Finally, as the French consider influencers' misconduct (the social advertising type - not the Love Island breakup type...) we also cover their new influencer law and its potential impact on the insurance industry.

We hope you find this edition informative and insightful.

Tim

Contents

The impact of UK riots on insurers	→
Insuring a summer of sport	→
The CrowdStrike outage: Assessing the fallout for the insurance market?	→
Under the influence: France introduces insurance requirement for influencers	→
The Supreme Court ruling of Lipton and Another v BA Cityflyer Ltd	→
Artificial intelligence putting the 'actuarial defence' to the test?	→

Key contact

Tim Johnson

Partner

tim.johnson@brownejacobson.com

+44 (0)115 976 6557

Related expertise

Services

Coverage disputes and policy interpretation

Insurance claims defence

Policy drafting and distribution