Taylor is a first-year trainee solicitor, based in our Nottingham office. She's currently sitting in the real estate (built environment) team, working on a wide range of commercial real estate and development matters for a variety of clients.

Taylor studied English at Queen Mary University London, before completing the Graduate Diploma in Law and Legal Practice Course LLM at BPP University, where she graduated with a distinction.

Taylor has previous experience of working as an in-house paralegal specialising in commercial contracts, and also worked as a paralegal at another firm in the financial services disputes and investigations team.
