Bradley is a Partner in our Manchester office with a national reach. He is ranked by Legal 500 as a “Next Generation Partner”, with clients valuing his solutions-focused approach. His public procurement expertise, strengthened through secondments in the public and private sector, involves advising on the full suite of procurement documents and procurement strategies for a wide range of procurements from service agreements to major regeneration projects.

In addition, Bradley is experienced in handling any other matters which arise during procurement processes and after contract completion (such as late bid submissions and compliant contract modifications). He also has an impressive track record of advising private sector clients challenging high-profile procurement outcomes and public sector clients defending challenges.

Whilst Bradley advises on procurements across a range of sectors, he particularly enjoys being involved in infrastructure and regeneration projects across the UK. He has acted on some of the largest-ever procurements conducted under the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2016 in the energy and rail sectors (combined values exceeding £14 billion).
