Lucy joined the firm in August 2021, she is a legal assistant within the Health and Advisory Litigation (HAL) team at Browne Jacobson. She has since been working on secondment with an NHS trust whilst providing support to colleagues on a large group action involving complex claims. Alongside supporting colleagues and NHS trusts, Lucy is responsible for managing a pre-litigated caseload.

At university, she was awarded a First in her undergraduate degree and has recently been awarded a masters in Law in 2021. During her studies, she volunteered at a local legal advice centre providing pro-bono advice to individuals and small business enterprises in the community.

Lucy is looking to study the Solicitors Qualifying Exam to qualify as a solicitor within HAL in the next five years.

Outside of work she enjoys going to the gym, drawing and is currently learning Greek.
