

Hannah Payne

Senior Associate

 Nottingham

hannah.payne@brownejacobson.com

+44 (0)330 045 2371

Hannah is an associate within our public, planning and environmental team. She specialises in public law matters and is experienced working with central and local government, devolved administrations and other public bodies. She regularly advises on lawful decision-making, performance of public functions and vires.

Having trained with Browne Jacobson LLP, Hannah has developed a wide-ranging practice, advising in litigious, advisory and transactional contexts. Hannah has particular experience in handling complex litigation including judicial review, public inquiries, statutory appeals and civil litigation.

Expertise

Sectors

Arm's length bodies

Government

Education

Real estate and construction

Featured experience

Low Traffic Neighbourhoods

Advising a local authority on the implementation of low traffic neighbourhoods and connected judicial review claims.

Planning Enforcement Judicial Review

Acting for a local authority on two connected judicial reviews relating to a decision of local planning officers not to take formal planning enforcement action.

