

Jonathan Vickers

Legal Director

 Birmingham

jonathan.vickers@brownejacobson.com

+44 (0)330 045 2167

Jonathan is a construction lawyer with over 12 years of experience specialising in the real estate and infrastructure sectors with particular experience in commercial, residential (including BTR and later living) and public/private regeneration projects. He has a passion for sustainability in the built environment.

He has extensive experience advising all parties involved in construction projects including institutional investors, government bodies, developers, tenants, purchasers and contractors. He brings this knowledge of each party's commercial drivers to achieve a collaborative negotiation of construction contracts ensuring that risks are appropriately allocated and shared to allow for a successful project from the outset.

Jonathan acts for both public and private sector clients from the very inception of a project advising on procurement routes and contract selection through to contract completion continuing to advise during the works on contract administration and management. He has extensive experience with all the main standard form of contracts with particular focus on JCT and NEC contracts as well as bespoke building contracts, development agreements and framework agreements.

He is passionate about sustainability in the built environment. He is a member of the Decarbonisation CAB at the ICE as well as involved with The Chancery Lane Project on drafting sustainable and net zero construction provisions.

Expertise

Services

Construction and engineering services

Projects and contract procurement

Regeneration

Higher education property management and real estate development

Real estate

Real estate investment

