

Matthew Hopkins

Associate

 Nottingham

matthew.hopkins@brownejacobson.com

+44 (0)330 045 1021

Matthew is an Associate in our commercial disputes team specialising in managing and resolving contentious commercial and contractual matters. Matthew covers all aspects of commercial litigation from the pre-action stages, combining in-depth experience in corporate and commercial settings with a results driven focus to resolve complex disputes.

Clients value Matthew's ability to dissect and address intricate legal issues to provide strategic, clear and coherent advice that aligns with each client's specific business objectives. Matthew's down to earth and pragmatic approach ensures clients receive the guidance they need to resolve disputes effectively with minimal cost.

Matthew regularly advises clients across technology, manufacturing and logistics, retail and education sectors, with particular experience in disputes involving defective goods, breach of contract, misrepresentation and breach of warranty claims.

With a proven track record of resolving disputes through litigation, negotiation and the use of alternative methods of dispute resolution, Matthew excels in managing multifaceted disputes that require a nuanced understanding of the law, making him a trusted advisor to clients facing high-stakes situations.

Related expertise

Business ownership disputes

Commercial dispute resolution

Directors and officers

Technology disputes

Featured experience

IT and Technology Systems

Assisted several large corporates with negotiating and resolving complex breach of contract and misrepresentation disputes involving IT systems.

Breach of Warranty Claims

Advised and assisted exiting shareholders with breach of warranty claims following a sale.

High-profile Food and Drink Disputes

Provided tailored advice to a number of international food and drink clients regarding defective product claims, fault machinery and supply chain issues.

Recruitment Agency Disputes

Advised several Multi Academy Trusts and litigated a number of recruitment agency disputes, most recently achieving a dismissal of claim and a costs award in favour of our client.