Darren has considerable experience of advising on a broad range of real estate matters. During his career, he has spent time in house working with an international developer and in a management role at a local authority. Darren also has project management qualifications.

Darren advises a variety of clients, including property investors and developers, government bodies, local authorities and other public sector organisations, registered providers, business owners and sporting organisations.

Darren acts on development and regeneration schemes, property acquisitions and disposals and landlord and tenant work. He has experience of dealing with the real estate aspects of corporate work and acting for both borrowers and lenders on bespoke lending transactions.

His career highlights include working on real estate aspects of the London 2012 Olympics project, assisting a football club with a large development and acting for both public and private sector bodies on a number of major development and regeneration schemes.
